

Career Connection – Conservation Officer

An environmental conservation officer is a police officer that works in natural areas, such as forests and other public lands. Conservation officers make sure people are following rules related to fishing and hunting, ATV and recreational vehicle use, and natural resources, to name a few. They may also help with search and rescue missions and wildlife management. “Game warden” or “Park ranger” are other titles to describe a similar position.